*Number one couple only side-steps/sashays down the center of the set with both hands joined, and then side-steps back to head of set (Other Dancers Clapping)

(Now Using Right Elbows or Forearms), couple one only go forward and turn once and a half by the right elbow and then left elbow to the first person in the opposite line (Boys to the Girls Line and Girls to the Boys Line), then back to partner by the right, then left to the second person in the opposite line by the left, then back to partner by the right, continue this reeling with each couple until the number 1 couple reaches the foot of the set which is usually with the 4th couple, now number 1 couple turns each other by the right elbow just half,

Number one couple only side-steps/sashays, returning to the head of set (Other Dancers Clapping)

Number 1 steps back into their original position, in the line.

All dancers face the Caller or head of the set, single file, number one man turns left, number one lady turns right (this is Called Casting Off), each leads their line down the outside to the foot of the set, where couple number one makes an arch, (Only 1 Arch is made by the Lead Couple each time)

The original number two couple leads the lines under the arch, all progressing forward to the head position, until the number two couple is at the head of the set and now the leaders, all fall back into lines to start the dance again with the original number two couple now in the original number one couples position,

The Dance continues for each couple. There is really no set number of couples for the Virginia Reel, but 4 or 5 couples is best, unless you want to continue dancing forever.
